

As a college teacher, I understand how vital independent, diverse media are to the education of democratic citizens. The continued consolidation of media ownership threatens citizens' abilities to make informed choices about the issues that challenge our world.